

WGEO Executive Training on Green Economy in the Context of Sustainable Development

Overview

WGEO has created a unique and highly interactive executive training programme with the purpose of leading the foundational work of developing a green economy infrastructure to facilitate action on the ground. The WGEO Executive Training entitled "Green Economy in the Context of Sustainable Development" aims to equip participants with a sound understanding of the key principles, dimensions, and trends in the process of transition to a green economy at national, regional and global levels. Participants will additionally become familiar with the tools and methods to catalyze proactive green action. Participants will also be able to effectively apply the knowledge they have acquired towards advancing the green economy agenda and implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals on the ground through sharing practices and exploring ways to enhance political, economic, social, financial and technical collaboration in the field of green economy and mobilizing relevant partnerships.

Target Audience

The Executive Training Course on Green Economy is targeted at executives and decision makers representing national governments international organizations, private sector, financial institutions as well as civil society organizations, including mass media. The course is designed to provide executives and decision makers with an opportunity to re-acquaint or familiarize themselves with core principles, dimensions, trends, tools and methodologies in scaling up the transition to a green economy model.
